HONORABLE KANIHO
A VERY BUM KAHUNA

The Honorable Kaniho, preacher, hula dancer and teacher of the hula, politician and near-statesman, may be a wizard when it comes to putting a spell upon the earnest voter, but he's a bum kahuna, according to the testimony of a bunch of Chinese who appeared before Judge Andrade yesterday and told a weird tale of how the honorable representative from the wilds of Kohala, and Honolulu, tried to juggle with the unknown and detect crime by the latest scientific methods, mixed with a few incantations, cabalistic signs and occult passes.

Kaniho, as previously related in The Advertiser, tried to make a bunch of Kalihis believe that he was a Big Kahuna. But, unfortunately for him, he got his wires crossed, or something happened to delay his familiar, and he accused the wrong man of having lifted the sack of gold that mysteriously disappeared from the strong box of one Young You.

Kaniho, it is alleged, persuaded Young You that he was gifted with occult powers which would enable him to detect the thief. Young You gave him a chance, and the honorable representative went through the performance of feeling the legs of all the other pokes in the neighborhood, claiming that he could detect from the steadiness or unsteadiness of their nether members whether they were guilty or innocent. Kaniho, however, failed to produce any results, and his stock as a kahuna has sunk considerably below par in Kalihis. Meantime, however, a Chinese named Young Lee was arrested and charged with the theft, and it was in the course of his trial before Judge Andrade that the story of the weird proceedings of the gentleman from Kohala came out. Judge Andrade felt disinclined to take snap judgment in the face of the uncanny testimony, and reserved his decision until November 4. By that time Kaniho will be seated once more among the Great Ones in the legislative halls. Maybe his kahuna will work better there.
